Inn would have 175 rooms

Marriott size cut in half

By KEN PETERSON

DEVELOPERS OF the proposed Rancho Canada Marriott Lodge have cut the number of rooms in half in an effort to salvage what seemed to be a doomed project a month ago.

Monterey County Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon confirmed last week that Gerald Dalton, the attorney for the Winthrop Carmel Inc. development group, contacted him about proceeding with a use permit for the scaled-down hotel at the mouth of the Carmel Valley.

Slimmon said the revised project, as outlined to him, would have 175 rooms instead of the 376 originally proposed. Six of the 12 proposed tennis courts also would be removed, he said. In addition, the nine golf course holes that would have been eliminated under the original Marriott Lodge application probably would be untouched, according to Slimmon. The site is at one corner of Rancho Canada Golf and Country Club.

The hotel probably will come up for a hearing on Jan. 31 before the Monterey County Planning Commission, Slimmon said.

Nick Lombardo, operator of Rancho Canada and a member of the development partnership, refused to confirm or deny the changes.

"I can't make any definitive statement at this time," he said last week. "We have no story to present at this time at all. We can't go before the planning commission until January."

OPPONENTS CHARGED that the hotel would compound traffic problems in the area, that it is inconsistent with land use planning for the Lower Valley and that sewage and water supply questions remain to be answered.

They mustered nearly 2,000 signatures on petitions opposing the project and packed public hearings on the issue.

The consistency issue was decided on a 3-2 vote by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors on Oct. 24. Supervisors Edwin Norris, Kenneth Blohm and Michal Moore overruled the planning commission and declared that a hotel is an appropriate land use for the site. Supervisors Sam Farr and Dusan Petrovic dissented.

Moore said at the time, however, that he would oppose the specific 376-room Marriott proposal if it ever reached the board. His vote, together with those of Farr and Petrovic, would defeat the hotel project.

Planning Commissioner William Peters of Carmel Valley said there still is a question whether any size hotel would be appropriate.

"The question is whether I would vote for a 20-room hotel there," he said. "I don't know. If I find a hotel is appropriate, then we can squabble about the number of units."

PETERS ADVANCED the argument last spring that the entire Marriott project is inconsistent with master plans and land use plans for the Lower Carmel Valley.

Commission Chairman Charmaine Cruchett, who will be off the panel by the time of the next Marriott hearing, said the reduction in rooms would not change her vote. She wanted the project denied from the beginning.

"I'm sorry we didn't do it straight," she said. "I hate getting involved in these numbers games. I think a straight-out denial is cleaner."

The Carmel Valley Property Owners Association will not alter its opposition to the hotel either, according to President Douglas Despard.

The organization agreed with the planning commission decision that any hotel is an inconsistent use of the Rancho Canada property. Cutting the hotel capacity to 175 rooms matters "not a bit," Despard said.

With 175 rooms, the Marriott Lodge would become the largest hotel in the Carmel area. The Holiday Inn in the Carmel Rancho center has 162 rooms, the greatest number south of Monterey. Other major hotels around the city include the Highlands Inn with 103 rooms, Del Monte Lodge in Pebble Beach with 133 rooms, Quail Lodge in Carmel Valley with 96 and La Playa Hotel in Carmel with 75 rooms.

In Monterey itself, the new Doubletree Inn is the Peninsula's largest hotel. It has 375 rooms.

Sewers manager fired for nepotism

EVIDENCE of nepotism and refusal to carry out agency policy has led to the ouster of Max R. Drewien, general manager of the Carmel Sanitary District.

Acting in a closed session Monday, the district board of directors gave Drewien 30-day notice of the firing. The vote was 3-2. Drewien, who receives $26,016 a year, can appeal the decision. The board would hear his appeal.

Drewien, 59, has been a district employee for more than 30 years. His firing was opposed by two directors, Ted Weller and Jim Pruitt. Charlotte Hurst, Vernon Head and Ken McGinnis favored it. If upheld, Drewien's dismissal

Rockets soar

MODEL ROCKETS WERE in the air Thanksgiving Day at Tularcitos School. The group of rocket buffs, led by Carmel Valley carpenter Gary Campsie, meets off and on to fire away. Some of the models go as high as 1,000 feet before they blow a final stage that releases a parachute. On Thanksgiving, there were about 20 rocket buffs watching the action above the playground blacktop. (Bob Egli photos)

At home in Montana

Albee-Halstead vows exchanged in Carmel

After a wedding and honeymoon in the Carmel area, Christine Lynn Albee and Robert Lee Halstead have established their first home in Helena, Mont.

Christine is the daughter of Mrs. Joseph V. McCargar of Carmel Valley. Her father is William H. Albee of Pleasant Hill.

Christine and Robert were wed Oct. 28 at the Highlands Inn wedding chapel. The Rev. Mrs. Christopher Christopherson of Faith Tabernacle Church of Helena officiated.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Mario Suarez of El Cajon. She is the bride's sister. Steven Halstead of Denver, the groom's brother, was the best man.

Robert is the manager of the Village Inn restaurant in Helena. He is the son of Bonnie Becker of Denver.

Christine is a graduate of Sonoma State University. She graduated from Pleasant Hill High School in 1975. Her ring was a family heirloom given by Robert's grandmother.

Christine is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Horne of Carmel Valley.

Following the ceremony, there was a buffet attended by about 50 guests.

CHRISTINE ALBEE, daughter of Mrs. Joseph V. McCargar of Carmel Valley, and her husband, Robert Halstead, have settled in Helena, Mont.

Tantamount benefit Dec. 10

A Rebuilding Fund benefit for the Tantamount Theatre will be presented Dec. 10 at 7:30 p.m. in the Barnyard Theatre when Eileen and Ted Salter of Hollywood will bring their adult puppet show for a two hour performance called Musically Speaking.

The husband-wife puppeteer team recently gave its show for adults at Bob Baker's Marionette Theater in Los Angeles, and according to Francois Martin of the Tantamount Theatre, puppets are only one of the Salters' many talents. Both are members of the Puppeteers of America and the Los Angeles Guild of Puppetry, but specialize in commercial art as well as show business.

Admission to the benefit is $6.50 at the door or $5 in advance. Further information may be obtained by phoning the Tantamount Theatre at 659-2405.

Dolls' Tea Party for Salvation Army Dec. 7

Several weeks ago, the Salvation Army Women's Auxiliary issued a plea for individuals or organizations to dress dolls which had been purchased by the auxiliary for Peninsula Christmas baskets.

The dolls in all their holiday finery have now been returned and will be displayed at the Dolls' Tea Party on Thursday, Dec. 7 from 2 to 5 p.m. Prizes will be awarded to those entered for competition. There also will be an exhibit of antique dolls and a sale of Christmas goodies.

Donations are $2 to view the event at the First Presbyterian Church of Monterey, 501 Eldorado St., Monterey.

Autograph party for kids Sun.

An autograph party for children should be added to your holiday calendars of events to make the season a memorable one for youngsters.

Mary Kay King, who is in charge of the children's department at the Thunderbird Bookstore, extends an invitation to "Meet the Authors"—Beverly Cleary and Doris Gates.

Both are residents of Carmel and have authored books so appealing that few children leave the Carmel Unified School District without having read such Cleary favorites as Ramona, the Henry Huggins series; and the classic Blue Willow by Doris Gates, whose Little Vic was a recent television presentation.

Beverly Cleary will be on hand to autograph books for fans or Christmas gift giving from noon until 2 p.m. and Doris Gates from 2 to 4 p.m. in the children's department.

Christmas tea Dec. 10

The Women's Association of the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula on West Carmel Valley Road will host its traditional Christmas tea on Sunday, Dec. 10.

Mrs. Ronald Gift is the chairman and Mrs. Charles Mackres Jr. is in charge of program arrangements. Husbands and guests are welcome to attend.

Ecumenical ceremonies planned at Madonna of the White Oak

An inspiration for the true joy of approaching holidays is never more effectively expressed than in the Ecumenical ceremonies scheduled Dec. 10 at noon when people of all faiths are invited to gather at the Madonna of the White Oak.

Mrs. W. G. B. Hatch is the coordinator of the service and has the support of Father McSweeney of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church; Rev. James Brock of St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church and Barbara Mark, owner of the White Oaks properties where the statue is located. Her mother, the late Marian Wilson, gave enthusiastic approval when the ritual began several years ago.

The ceremony was the idea of former Valleyite Bob Ziener, who was instrumental in obtaining the Madonna for Carmel Valley. The work of Djey Owens, a former Carmel artist, the statue had been sought by numerous California cities including Santa Barbara. After it had been at its present location for several years, it was purchased for the people of Carmel Valley by an anonymous donor.

Bob, who lives in Chicago, will be on the Peninsula for a week coordinating a convention at Del Monte Lodge for a builders' magazine. He has accepted an invitation to speak during the ceremonies and will be introduced by Representative Leon Panetta. Music will be provided by guitarists from the local churches and carols by the children's chorus.

Valleyite Glory Condon creates popular Christmas yule logs

'Tis an accepted fact that the North Pole Workshop has elves working daily around the clock to fill Santa's sleigh on Christmas Eve. But what with premium housing and commuting a bore, many Christmas executives find it workable to do their creating in the sun-drenched Carmel Valley.

One of the many who does holiday projects for fun and profit is Mrs. Tim (Glory) Condon of Garzas Road, who makes yule logs. She began her venture in 1970 and sold them on a Christmas tree lot. There were many repeat orders, the word spread and now she has them placed in several shops in the area.

The seasoned hand-cut Valley oak logs are 23 inches long and five inches wide. They are decorated with boughs and pine cones from the Sierra or a large pinyon cone from Chews Ridge. This year she has added pine cone birds, scented the logs and they burn in a range of colors. The attached large red candle is sometimes burned the first four Sundays in December in lieu of an Advent wreath.

Stemming from an old English custom, the yule log was brought into the house to burn the 12 days before Christmas to ensure good luck. It was the custom, too, to light the log with a piece of wood from the year before—this, too, was a sign of good luck.

Glory's logs make unusual gifts, pretty center pieces or are a nice tree substitute in a tiny apartment. A warm touch of tradition that clearly says, "Merry Christmas."

GLORY CONDON puts the finishing touches on one of her yule logs. A project which began as gifts for family and friends created a demand for the supply which has grown each year since 1970.

C.V. Ranch development

First 140 units seek planners' nod

The first 140 townhouse units of Carmel Valley Ranch will come before the Monterey County Planning Commission for environmental approval Dec. 13.

According to Zoning Administrator Robert Slimmon, the commission probably will accept the existing environmental impact report for the total ranch proposal.

The townhouses, together with 20 single-family homesites, represent the first two-year phase of residential construction on the ranch. The property is located just east of the Mid Valley Shopping Center, on the south side of Carmel Valley Road.

The actual subdivision map for the first phase of the project will be heard at a later date. The ranch developers, Landmark Lands Inc. of Oklahoma City, still are negotiating with county and private agencies to provide water, sewage treatment and a road improvement agreement for the project.

Overhead utilities requested by Porter

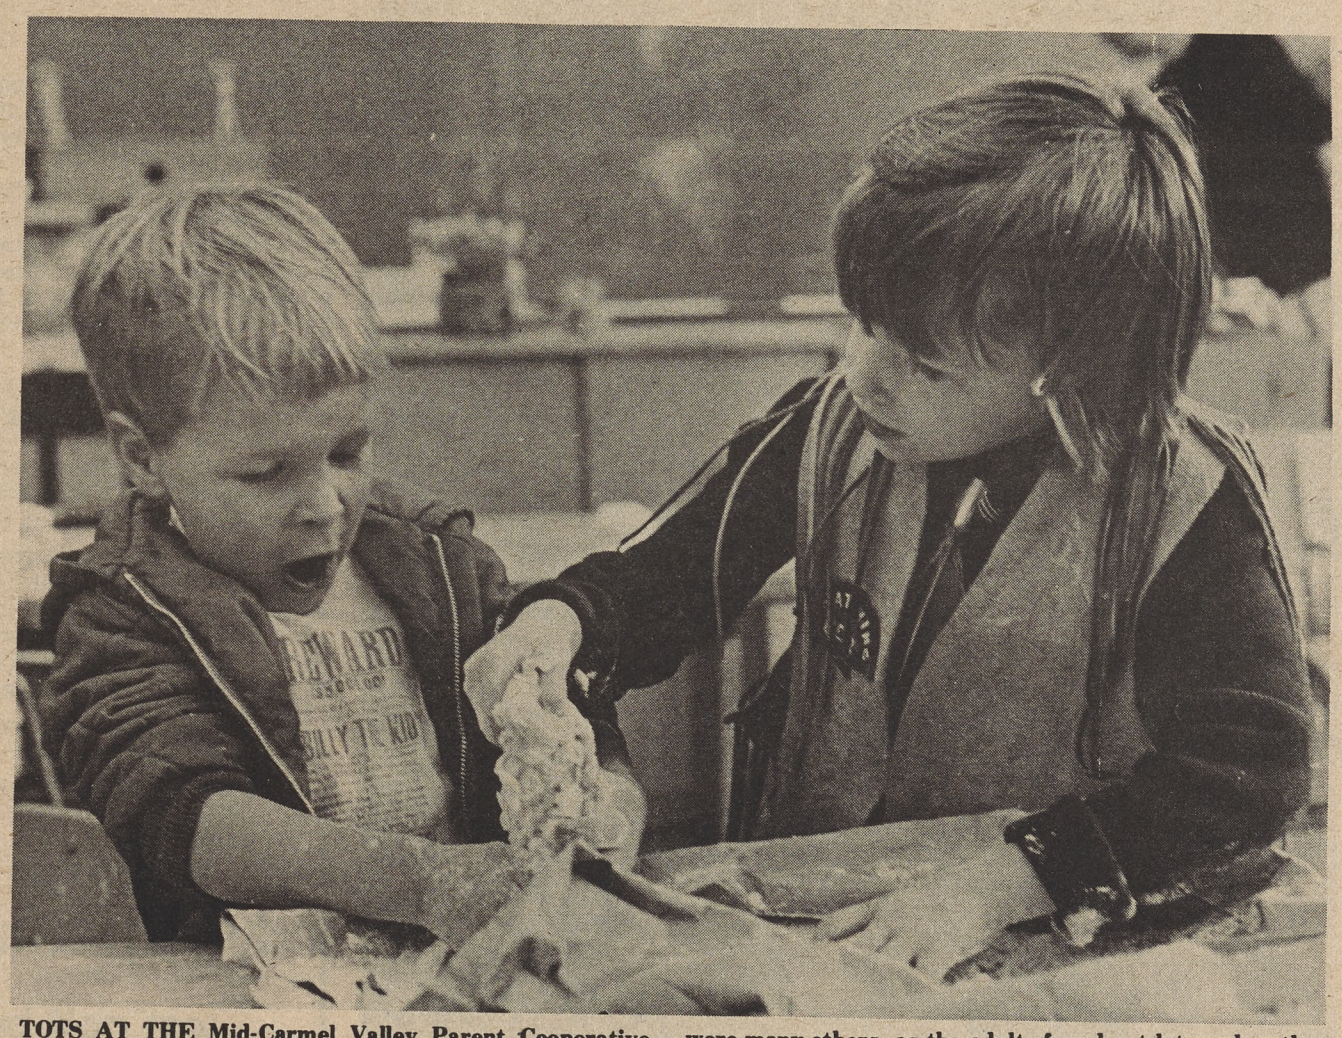
The developer of a 23-lot subdivision east of Carmel Valley Village wants the utility lines for the project overhead rather than underground. Paul Porter will ask the Monterey County Planning Commission to change the underground requirement when it meets Dec. 13 at 2 p.m.

Porter said the 233-acre development already has a major transmission line crossing the property overhead. The large lot sizes (five-acre minimum) increase the cost of trenching for underground lines, he said. And the poles and lines would run through a heavily wooded area, minimizing visual impact, he said.

Porter said the original project environmental impact report called for overhead utilities, a facet left out of the development's use permit.

The project is located on the south side of Carmel Valley Road 2.5 miles east of the Village. It entails 23 residential lots with 84 acres dedicated for open space.

Noodle dough kneaders



TOTS AT THE Mid-Carmel Valley Parent Cooperative Nursery School became noodle dough kneaders last week as they prepared the noodle soup for lunch. These 4-year-olds, Tim Lewis of Carmel and Jeannine Trudeau of Carmel Valley, were up to their elbows in the project. So were many others, as the adults found out later when the youngsters lined up at the wash basin. Parents were invited to the lunch. The nursery school is at Carmelo School. (Carolyn Rice photo)

Both departments face tight budgets

Carmel Valley, Mid-Valley fire departments consider consolidation

THE CARMEL Valley and Mid-Valley Fire Departments are deep into discussion about consolidating the two districts, with a report expected to the district boards of directors next February.

Both departments face tighter budgets in the wake of Proposition 13 and are looking at consolidation as a cost-cutting measure.

The major saving from joining the departments probably would be the demotion of one department chief to assistant chief. The departments also could save money by using the same operating procedures and administrative forms before a formal merger takes place.

The six-man committee looking into consolidation expects it could take five years for the departments to become a single unit, according to Chief Bill Sims of Carmel Valley and Chief Ron Zeise of Mid-Valley.

While both men would be affected personally by the merger, neither one is concerned about the situation.

"We're looking at it from a practical standpoint," Sims said. The decision is up to the two boards of directors, he said. Whichever way it goes, as a professional firefighter he would make the decision work.

"Neither one of us went into this business so we could wear a badge to cover up a void in our personality," Zeise said. "My concern is giving people the most for their money. I don't care what you call me."

Since Carmel Valley and Mid-Valley are volunteer departments with four paid firefighters each, Sims said administrative overhead is the only place to save a lot of money. And administrative overhead translates directly into having one fire chief at one station house and an assistant chief at the other.

"Naturally you don't pay one as much as the other," Sims said. If the Valley continues to grow and more paid personnel are needed to staff the departments, "there would probably be a major saving in the administrative position."

He said the departments also can save money by using the same forms and standardizing their fire protection requirements for new subdivisions and homes.

ZEISE SAID standardized operating procedures would mean a volunteer from one district could respond to a call in the other district without being more hindrance than help to his fellow firefighters.

He said the entire process could be phased in over a five-year period—if consolidation is the answer to the budget constraints on the two departments.

Right now, he said, "I can't answer that question. I really can't. If it shows a lower cost to the taxpayer and keeps the same efficiency or improves it, I can't not support it."

The joint district committee studying the matter includes Sims, Zeise, Carmel Valley director Chris Spaulding, Mid-Valley director Steve Thigpen, Assistant Volunteer Chief Don Cummings of Carmel Valley and volunteer Bob Rice from Mid-Valley.

The committee is supposed to report back to the two boards of directors Feb. 1 with a recommendation for action on consolidation. Both Zeise and Sims believe it will take longer than that to study the matter because of the holidays and a press of day-to-day business. The panel has been meeting once a week since Oct. 25 and will continue that schedule, Sims said.

Once the committee has a recommendation on consolidation, he added, the districts will try to get public comment on the issue.

116 countries down, seven to go

Globe-trotting golfer George Salter still not done

By KEN PETERSON

GEORGE SALTER of Carmel Valley has been playing golf for 66 of his 82 years. He has shot rounds from Alaska to Australia, from Tahiti to Trinidad. In the course of his globe-trotting adventures, he also has earned a place for himself in the Guinness Book of World Records: George Salter, Most Peripatetic Golfer, who has played at least one round in 116 countries.

One hundred and sixteen? That's right. And he has journeyed to all but three of those countries since he retired as a waterworks designer in Chicago at 68.

Salter got started on his hobby in a mild way.

"I had played in most states before I retired," he said. "In 1964 to 1966, I toured the United States to finish the rest of the states."

He completed No. 50 in Alaska on what he calls the worst course he ever played. It was a nine-hole, par-three course "without a blade of grass on it," Salter said. The fairways were covered with small stones from golf mining tailings and the sand traps were filled with gravel.

Salter picked up steam in his globe-girdling golf jaunts beginning in 1967. For the next seven years, he played in a minimum of 10 countries a year. His busiest year came in 1973, when he played in 24 nations in the Caribbean and South Pacific.

He first learned the game from his grandfather and uncle while he was in high school in Nebraska. That was in 1912. Salter later played with the University of Nebraska golf team, although he confesses, "I never played too good a game of golf."

He remained an active amateur golfer during his working years, playing 272 courses in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Salter has an affinity for finding lost golf balls

WITH RETIREMENT, remarriage and a move to Hacienda Carmel in Carmel Valley, Salter turned the avocation into almost a full-time career.

His wife, Arlene, enjoys traveling around the world although she is not a golfer. The couple has made three trips around the globe and nine shorter regional tours.

"We've seen most of the sights of the world," he said. "There are very few outstanding tourist sights we haven't seen."

Salter said he still has two places on his "must see" list: the Great Wall of China and Angel Falls in Venezuela. He expects to get to them even though he already has visited Venezuela and China and they have no golf courses.

As a general rule, "I don't visit countries that don't have courses," Salter said.

He figures there are only about seven or eight countries left where he hasn't played golf. Some are in western Africa, the rest in the Arab gulf states. He said he hopes to play on "at least five of them."

There are, of course, countries he hasn't visited, like the Soviet Union, Poland and Hungary. But those nations have no golf courses.

WHEN HE'S AT home, Salter plays at least three rounds of golf a week, usually at his home course, Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club. Since he moved to California with Arlene in 1964, he has played 1,551 rounds there. Those include three rounds where he scored a hole-in-one—and each time on a different hole. Salter has four aces in his lifetime, all of them since he came west.

He refuses to use a golf cart, walking every step of each round. And he has the trim body of a man 20 years his junior.

Salter also has an affinity for finding lost golf balls: he invariably comes home with two or three more than he started with. His wife makes decoupage boxes in the craft center at Hacienda Carmel and their den is dotted with the boxes, filled to the brim with golf balls.

Salter said he hopes to travel a time or two more to round out the last few countries whose golf courses have not felt his feet or the stroke of his clubs. He's running out of courses at about the right time. His wife, Salter related, has already told him, "Honey, I've seen all the sights I want to see."

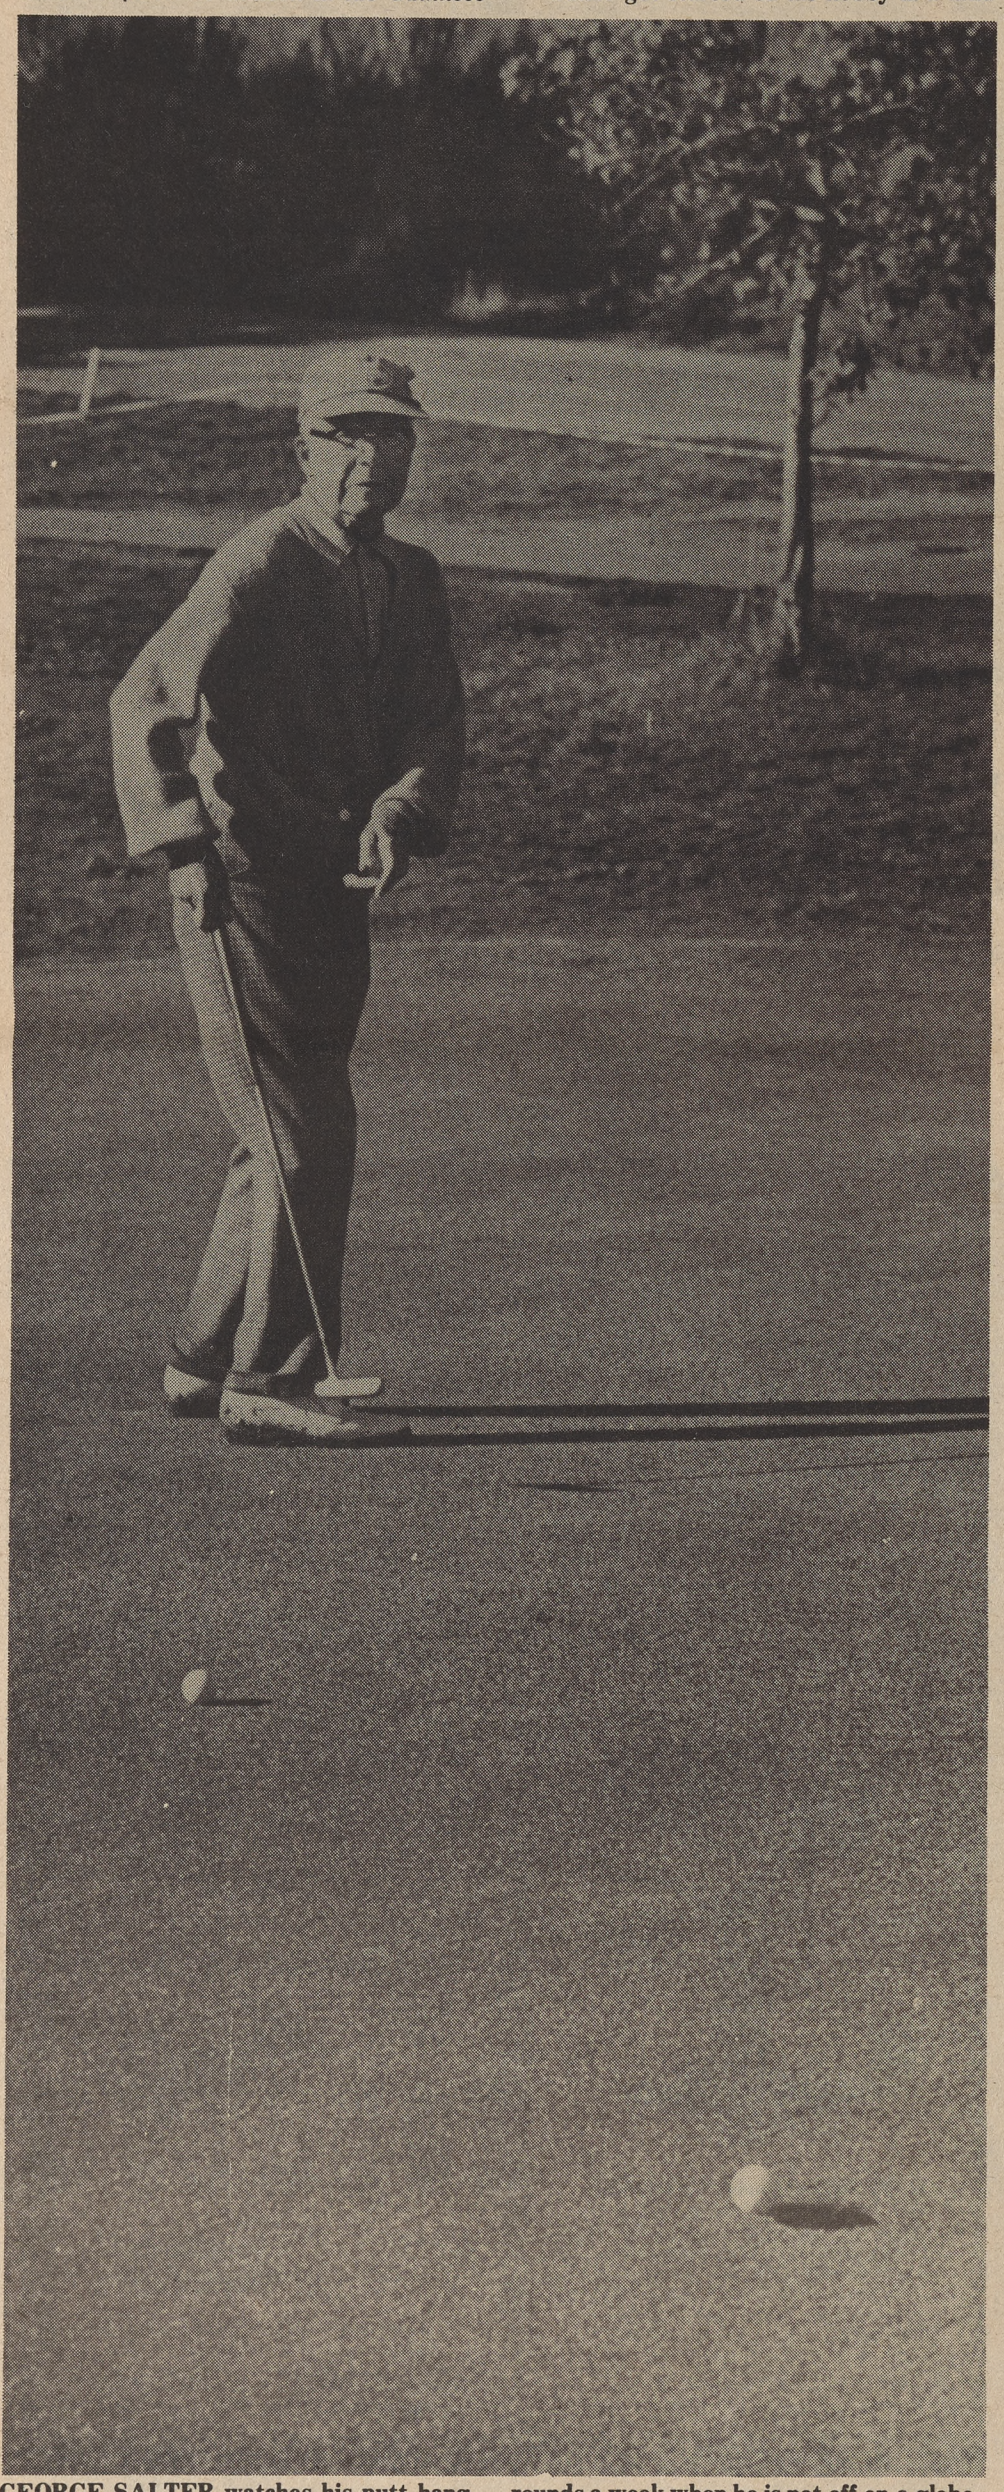
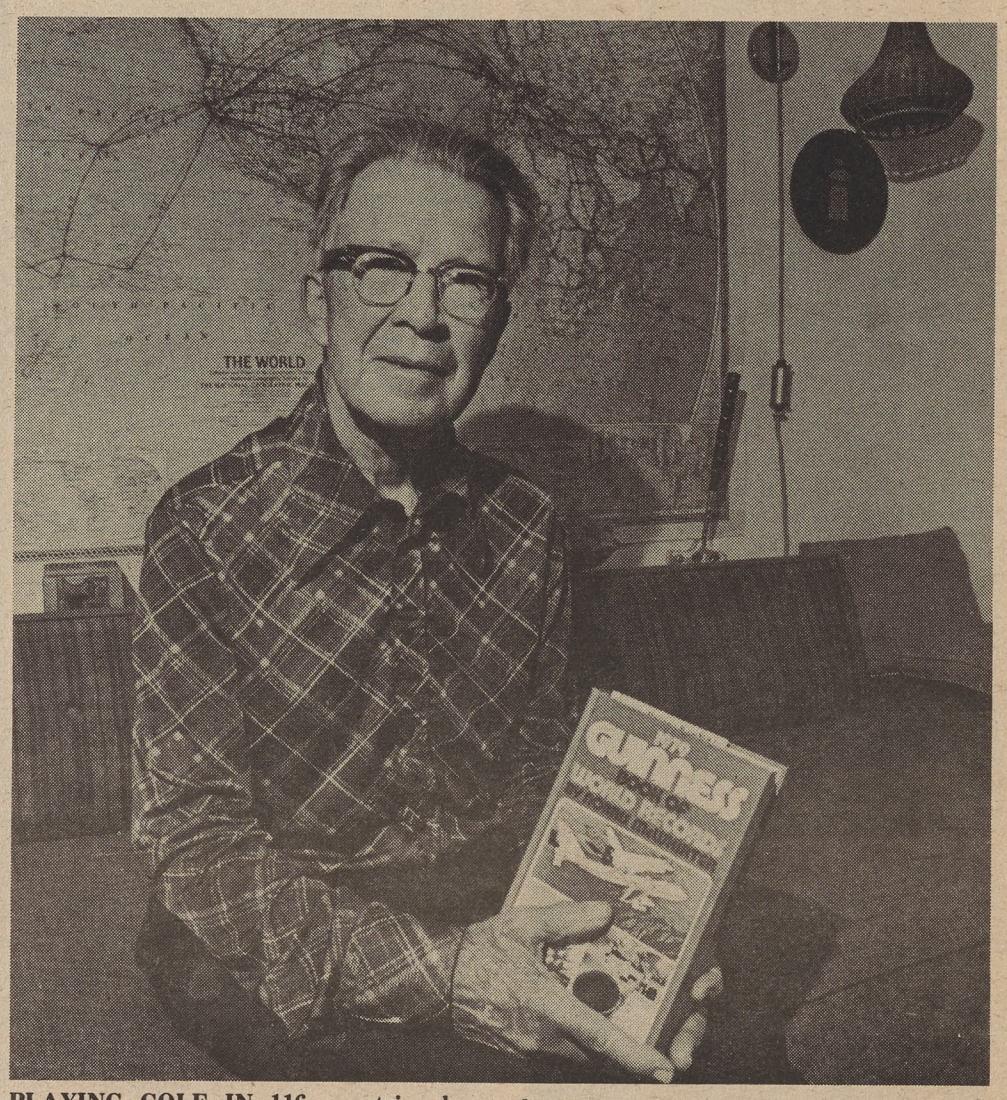
EVEN STAYING in Carmel Valley, Salter has one golfing goal left. He wants to "shoot his age," have a round of golf where his score totals his years.

A 19-handicap golfer who routinely shoots in the mid- to upper-80s, Salter figures this will happen by 1982 or 1983.

For a man who has played 562 different courses in 116 countries, it should be a snap.



GEORGE SALTER watches his putt hang on the lip of the cup at Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club. Salter tries to play three rounds a week when he is not off on a globe-girdling golf tour. (Kirk McClelland photos)



PLAYING GOLF IN 116 countries has earned George Salter of Carmel Valley a place in the 1979 "Guinness Book of World Records." The map behind Salter shows the trips he has taken with his wife sightseeing and giving him a chance to play golf in virtually every nation that has a course.

Carmel Valley Librarian

The organizational meeting for the Carmel Valley Friends of the Library is scheduled at the Community Center on Ford Road Thursday, Dec. 7 at 7:30 p.m. Anyone interested is invited to attend.

Friends of the Library is an organization of people who are interested in promoting the welfare and growth of their library.

What a "friends" group does varies from library to library since different communities have different interests and needs. Some groups are political. They push for more hours open, bigger libraries, more budget. Some groups are service-oriented. They have volunteer programs which include giving story hours, taking books to shut-ins and shelving books. Some "friends" groups are financially supportive of their library. They conduct book sales, bazaars, lecture and poetry series and other fund-raisers. Some are all three and some are even more.

What our Friends of the Library group will become will be strictly up to you. So bring your ideas, your enthusiasm and especially your self to the meeting. On that evening, we will appoint a nominating commitee and decide what kind of a group we want.

Autograph party at Thunderbird

Best-selling Carmel author Rosemary Rogers will greet visitors and autograph her newest romantic novel, The Crowd Pleasers, at Thunderbird Bookstore in the Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel, Saturday, Dec. 2 from 12:30-2:30 p.m.

On Sunday afternoon, two best-selling children's authors will be at Thunderbird. Beverly Cleary will sign copies of her popular children's books from noon-2 p.m. while Doris Gates will preside at the autograph table from 2-4 p.m. Both women live and write in Carmel.

The public is welcome to the events at no charge.

Weekend hikes to Toro, Los Padres for Sierra Club

Hikes of moderate difficulty, in Toro Regional Park and along the banks of Los Padres Reservoir, are on the outing calendar of the local Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club this weekend.

The six-mile loop hike through Toro Park, along the Barlow Canyon Trail to Eagle Peak then back along the Cougar Ridge trail is scheduled Saturday, Dec. 2. Hikers will meet at the Cinema 70 parking lot at the Del Monte Shopping Center, Monterey, at 9 a.m. to form carpools. Hikers may also meet at the park entrance on the Monterey-Salinas Highway, five miles east of Monterey. Bring lunch, water and a 50-cent gate fee.

For more information, phone leaders Mal Bauer, 624-3254; Roy Anderson, 1-449-0162, or Gilbert Anderson, 1-484-1240.

The second hike on Sunday, Dec. 3, will follow a scenic trail along the Los Padres Reservoir and the Carmel River. The eight-mile hike is considered strenuous for beginners.

Hikers will meet at 8:30 a.m. behind Brinton's in the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel to form carpools. Participants may also meet at the Bank of America parking lot in Carmel Valley Village at 9 a.m. Bring lunch, water and wear hiking boots.

Bikers place in Laguna Seca race

Five Carmel and Carmel Valley youths placed high in bicycle motocross races at Laguna Seca on Nov. 19.

Mike Young of Carmel won the 16-and-over novice division. He also placed second in the 14-and-over open category.

Bob Lyon of Carmel Valley finished third in the 14-15 novice group. Tray Whipple of Carmel Valley placed third in the 12-13 beginner division.

The next race will be a charity event Sunday, Dec. 17 at Laguna Seca. Proceeds from the races will go to the Seaside Fire Department for its Jaws of Life rescue tool purchase and other charitable organizations to be selected by the race organizers.

SPCA benefit party Thurs.

Animal lovers are invited to the Christmas party sponsored by the Monterey County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals Auxiliary Thursday, Dec. 7. The second annual Cocktails & Things reception will be at the home of Thomas and Lise Work Jr., Ronda and Cortez streets, Pebble Beach, from 6-8:30 p.m.

A $10 per person donation is requested; reservations are necessary. Proceeds will benefit the S.P.C.A.

Burnett appointed to advise

Nancy Burnett has been named to fill the remaining vacancy on the county Upper Carmel Valley Advisory Committee.

Monterey County Planning Commissioner William Peters made the appointment Wednesday. Miss Burnett, who lives on Boronda Road, is a marine biologist who has been working with the Carmel Valley Master Plan Committee. She was appointed to a one-year term.

The advisory committee members have selected real estate agent Don Middleton to be the chairman of the panel.

The committee plans to meet on alternate Wednesdays at 8 a.m. in the Carmel Valley Fire Department firehouse.

32 original Christmas trees

'Storybook Christmas' for Festival of Trees

A Storybook Christmas is the theme of the 1978 Festival of the Trees, an annual event presented by the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art in the Exhibition Hall of the Monterey County Fairgrounds. The event continues for four days, Thursday through Sunday, Nov. 30-Dec. 3.

Local merchants and professional firms have commissioned 32 original Christmas trees which will be on display. Handmade ornaments are made in the museum's year-'round workshop, where more than 30 people donate volunteer time and talent at least once and sometimes twice weekly. Each tree depicts an individual story to contribute to the central theme.

The Festival, now in its 10th year, is the main fund-raising event for the museum and generates one-third its annual budget. Trees for the Festival are carefully chosen and purchased from the YMCA Christmas Tree Lot.

In addition to the exhibition of decorated trees, the Festival includes Treasure Island, where browsers will discover handmade original Christmas decorations, ornaments, wreaths and gifts and the Old Curiosity Shop, offering museum replicas and unusual gifts from around the world.

Mother Hubbard's Cupboard has been filled by the Jesters, a museum auxiliary, with homemade jams, jellies, cakes, breads and candy—especially peanut brittle and fudge—all made with tender loving care and a unique touch.

At Little Jack Horner's Corner, complimentary refreshments will be served through Festival hours. New this year is A Walk Through Storybook Land, specially escorted children's tours of the Festival by two charming Christmas Fairies, who will tell small fry about each special fairy tale.

A repeat of former years is the popular Wassail Bowl, Sunday, Dec. 3 from 2-4 p.m., with Christmas caroling.

Festival of the Trees hours are 10 a.m.-9 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday and 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $1.50 for adults and 50 cents for children under 12 when accompanied by an adult.

There are ramps and wheelchairs available for the handicapped and special arrangements may be made for tour groups. Contact chairman Elisa Andrews, 372-4026, or the museum, 372-5477.

The Fairgrounds are on Fairgrounds and Garden roads, Monterey.

Renaissance fair in miniature

39 Craftsmen return for annual show, sale

Thirty-nine Craftsmen Bring Christmas will return to La Playa Hotel for its 11th annual show and sale, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 1-3. The affair is a Renaissance fair in miniature, offering costumed craftspeople, a mulled wine preview party and handmade crafts of every description.

The preview party, Friday, Dec. 1 from 6-9 p.m. offers "spirited Yuletide punch and holiday tidbits" and a chance to mix with local residents, city officials and personalities. Admission is $3.

There is no admission charge to the Saturday and Sunday shows. Hours are noon-10 p.m. Saturday and noon-6 p.m. Sunday with unlimited browsing and a chance to talk with individual craftspeople and artists. Only the punch is missing.

The 39 craftsmen will really be 32 this year, due to the popularity of the event and the size limitations of the hotel, but visitors are unlikely to notice the absence. Glassware, scrimshaw, weaving, carving, basketry, jewelry and silversmithing, pottery and enamel work among other crafts will be on display.

Flamenco troupe 'Doradus' performs at Barnyard

Doradus, a Flamenco troupe, will appear at the Carmel Barnyard Theatre to open the International Christmas Celebration at the Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Road, Carmel. Doradus will perform Thursday through Saturday, Nov. 30-Dec. 2 and Dec. 7-9 at 8:30 p.m.

The troupe, which is associated with the San Jose Ballet, performed at Carmel's outdoor Forest Theater this summer.

The three-member troupe includes guitarists Kent Newman and Wayne Robertson and dancer Holly Lynn. They bring a historical approach to the gypsy dances and music of Spain.

Their repertoire ranges from tender lullabies and solitary song of the matador to the passionate tapping of Tacaneo, the exuberant dance that is called "the soul of Flamenco."

Holly Lynn has toured extensively throughout the United States and South America and has appeared with the San Francisco Ballet Company and on television. She was principal dancer with Gene Marinaccio's American Concert Ballet.

"Miss Lynn dances with the kind of effervescent ease that comes only through natural endowment. She offers powerful evidence to support the argument that dancers are born not made," wrote the San Francisco Chronicle.

Tickets, at $4.50, are available at the box office; reservations may be made by phoning 625-1228.

TEN THOUSAND hours of volunteer labor are required to make the original decorations that will adorn 32 custom Christmas trees on view at the 10th annual Festival of Trees, Thursday through Sunday, Nov. 30-Dec. 3 at the Exhibition Hall of the Monterey County Fairgrounds, Monterey. The event is the major fund-raiser for the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

Choirs, carols in Carmel Sat.

Christmas in Carmel, the second annual community celebration of the holiday season, will fill Sunset Theater with caroling choirs in a program of music from many lands. The celebration begins at 3 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2; everyone is welcome and there is no charge for admission.

Pamela Smith rules out bid for new school board term

MARCH COMES in November next year as far as Carmel school board candidates are concerned. And that is seven months later than one board member likes.

Under a new state law that takes effect Jan. 1, school district elections will be conducted in November rather than the traditional spring date.

Those trustees in office will find their terms extended by seven months.

Trustee Pamela Smith is up for re-election in 1979. Board members Richard Wilsdon, Elizabeth Bell and Clayton Neill Jr. also have expiring terms. Neill will run for a two-year term because he is filling the vacancy created when Edward Reilly resigned from the board in 1977. The other three seats carry four-year terms.

Mrs. Smith is the only one of the four who has decided she will not seek another term.

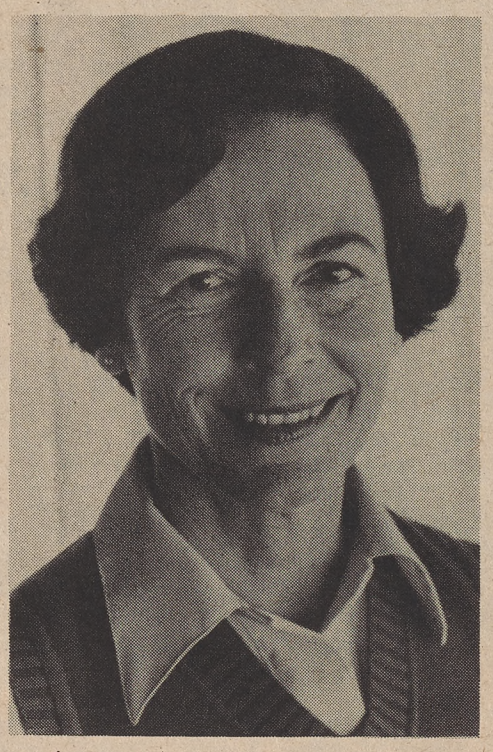
"I MUST ADMIT I was dreaming some beautiful dreams about what I would do with my spare time when I was off the school board," Mrs. Smith said. "My plans aren't anything that can't wait. I'll just have to delay them a little while longer."



CARMEL SCHOOL trustee Pamela Smith is the only one of four board members up for election next fall who has decided not to seek another term on the board. But she will have seven months added to her term because of a change in state law shifting the election from March to November.

By remaining on the board until fall, she and the other board members will oversee yet another budget session, their second under the constraints of Proposition 13.

Wilsdon said he is "indifferent" to the extra seven months of work. He said having fall rather than spring elections will make it easier for new board members. They will begin their terms without the looming presence of June budget decisions right after they take office.

Wilsdon said he has not made up his mind about running for a fourth term on the board.

Mrs. Bell, a first-term board member, said she is not planning to leave the board. On the other hand, she has not definitely decided to run again.

"It's too early to make a decision," she said.

Mrs. Bell is not concerned about the additional seven months in office. But she mentioned that several people, anticipating the usual spring vote, already have been talking about candidates for the four seats up for election.

Neill also said he has given little thought to running for election to his seat. He served two terms from 1961 to 1969 before accepting his appointment to the board after Reilly resigned.

For potential school board candidates, the traditional winter filing dates go by the board for the November ballot. Filing opens for the school board vacancies on Aug. 9 next year and closes Aug. 31.

PUT A CHAMELEON on green paper and after a few minutes he turns green. Give California a good rain and after a few days it turns green.

Every square yard of soil, clay, sand, rocky pebbles, flat or hillside, offers hundreds of sprouting seeds. Last month we had desert. Dried ground looked very unpromising. The hills were gray. This month, we have a carpet of soft, tender footing colored bright emerald.

Just what is all that green stuff? Is it going to grow tall? Will it be good pasture for horses? Is it weeds or not?

One year, the late Dr. Edith Brattin, the noted Carmel Valley botanist, walked me around a stretch of pasture land identifying various species. She pointed out that very little of what turns the hills green and makes the horses happy are native California grasses.

In Carmel Valley's 200-year history as grazing lands and then as farmlands, many species have been imported. The mission fathers undoubtedly imported filaree, bur clover, and oats and rye. These were valuable forage plants.

An almost pure stand of filaree recurs every year on the river flats pasture of the old Rancho Laureles, the 5,000-acre land grant which includes the land now occupied by Carmel Valley Village. The filaree is particularly to be seen east of the Little League field and in the area known as "the old Girl Scout camp." Filaree is related to alfalfa. It blossoms with a purple flower and sets seeds that children call "stork bills" or "clocks."

Mixed in with these imported seeds were undoubtedly many weed seeds and the seeds of other grasses which like to grow alongside these desirable forage crops on European pastures. Perhaps that is how Ripgut Brome, Foxtail Fescue, Hare Barley and Downy Chess came here. These are all annuals, quick sprouting, quick seeding. The seeds for these might also have arrived in packing material, caught in the coats of imported animals, in soil around the roots of pear saplings.

RIPGUT BROME, Hare Barley and Foxtail Fescue are major components of the greening of Carmel Valley as they are throughout the coast hills. They are all nutritious to livestock when grazed early. But by May they will have set seed heads with stiff awns which are bothersome to graze. By June, these seeds will be sticking into children's socks, poodle's coats and saddle blankets. The seeds of all these species are indiscriminately referred to by annoyed Californians as "foxtails."

Downy Chess, Bromus Tectorum, is what remains in the pasture after all the better species have been grazed off. It grows well on sandy dry hillsides where other grasses need help to compete with it. It is not particularly nutritious and when ranges carry a heavy growth of the soft slender grass, it indicates a deteriorated condition. It is also called "cheat grass."

Much of the green now sprouting is oats. Oats seem to survive even heavy grazing because the seeds are protected by a tough seed coat. A fair percentage of oats grazed by animals, goes through the animal undigested and is replanted along with fertilizer.

Most of the oats now growing wild are not wild oats. They are cultivated oats (Avena Sativa) which have escaped from cultivation. That's the oats with the fat heavy seeds. There are wild oats (Avena Fatua) around also. They have a more delicate appearance: slim seeds carried on longer, more slender stems.

A fair amount of barley also has escaped from cultivation. Also, barley was seeded into road cuts for erosion control often by the spreading of barley hay—the cheapest kind of hay—on the raw earth surfaces.

More often it was rye that was planted for erosion control. The forest service even plants it from airplanes after forest fires. Rye is a perennial which acts like an annual in California. It dies out on dry hillsides—after setting about 100 seeds per stalk. In wet places, swamps, roadside ditches, rye remains green all year. That makes it a good plant for irrigated pastures. The Tularcitos School playing field is almost all rye.

The tiny plants with two little round seed leaves sprouting innocently among the grass is mostly mustard. This plant also is an immigrant from Europe almost certainly an accident. Who would import it on purpose? It's a pest.

Mustard grows slightly more slowly than the grasses. You may think that your pasture is in good shape—all grasses, no mustard showing. Then comes June when the grasses die back and the mustard begins to flower. That's what gives California a golden season. The hills are solid yellow with mustard. Disc pastures now, and again in a few weeks before seeding with good grasses to control mustard growth. Horses don't eat mustard.

Promoted his son

becomes effective Dec. 31. Drewien has been put on a leave of absence without pay.

• Max P. Drewien, a district employee and the son of Drewien, was promoted although Drewien had promosed the same promotion to another employee. Drewien reportedly told the board members he had to promote his son to avoid domestic problems with his wife.

• Drewien hired his son's father-in-law, Paul Ricketson, despite a district policy against nepotism. Ricketson is a sewer maintenance worker being trained by the district.

• Employee overtime policies were changed by Drewien without consulting with budget committee of the district board of directors.

• Drewien was responsible for a two-year delay in hiring a district engineer.

• An office secretary was not allowed to attend a bookkeeping course on agency time. Drewien refused to allow her to go despite a vote by the board of directors authorizing it.

The resolution of intent to fire also charged that Drewien hired employees before getting results of mandatory pre-employment physical examinations. It also said he had not advertised job vacancies before filling them.

The incidents show "a lack of administrative and management ability," the resolution said. Drewien has "caused dissension among district employees by not complying with the intent and spirit of the established ordinances and policies," it also said.

Drewien had no comment following the vote Monday. "I knew something was in the air since I got back from vacation," he did say. He returned in early November.

Mrs. Hurst would make no comment on the advice of Donald Freeman, the attorney for the district. District employees also have been instructed to say nothing about the matter, she added.

Weller, who voted in the minority on the dismissal resolution, also said he had no comment on the action.

Drewien was hired by the district in October 1946 as a maintenance worker. He took a 16-month leave that ended in 1953. He was appointed general manager in December 1967.

Obituaries

Edith Brattin succumbs

Edith L. Brattin, a longtime Peninsula resident until May, died on Monday of last week at her home in Mazatlan, Mexico, after a short illness. She had resided in the Carmel area for 38 years. She was 67.

Mrs. Brattin was in Mexico setting up an art studio in Mazatlan.

She was a landscape architect and former Carmel Valley nursery owner. She moved to Mazatlan following an appointment to serve as botanist for the San Francisco Academy of Sciences in Mexico.

She was born in Petaluma and moved to Pacific Grove in 1938 following her marriage to Melvin Brattin. They moved to Carmel and resided there from 1940 to 1960, and she moved to Carmel Valley where she opened the Brattin Nursery at 4 Pilot Road, Carmel Valley.

She is survived by a son, Tim Brattin of Carmel Valley; a sister, Ethelyn Dickson of Santa Rosa, and two grandchildren.

Funeral services and burial were in Mazatlan. The family suggests memorial contributions to the Edith Brattin Memorial Fund for Handicapped Children, in care of the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District, Special Education Department, Box 1031, Monterey, 93940.

Board will hear three proposals

Appeal hearings on three subdivision proposals in the Robles del Rio area of Carmel Valley have been scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 2 at 3 p.m., rather than the December date reported earlier in the Outlook.

The board will hear three separate proposals to create 14 building sites off Calle de los Agrinemsors at the south end of the community near Carmel Valley Village.

Supervisor Sam Farr of Carmel will be board chairman when the hearing is conducted and Barbara Shipnuck of Salinas will replace Supervisor Edwin Norris the same day.

The proposals up for consideration are the seven-lot Vista Robles major subdivision, requested by a partnership headed by Charles Fisher of Monterey; a three-lot minor subdivision requested by Abraham Loefsky; and a four-lot minor subdivision requested by H. C. Steele and J. L. Cooper.

The Loefsky and Steele-Cooper subdivisions are contiguous. Vista Robles is about 1,000 yards south of the other properties.

Residents organized the Robles Revolt to oppose the projects, claiming they will have major impacts on roads, fire protection and water supply in the area.

Farr asked that the three related subdivisions be heard at the same time to make it easier for the public to attend.

Motorist skids off Highway 1

A 27-year-old Carmel Valley woman was injured on Tuesday of last week when her car went off Highway 1 in Big Sur and rolled over.

Susan L. Salabarry was admitted to Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula following the accident at 3:10 a.m. She was released later in the week, according to a hospital spokesman.

A passenger with Miss Salabarry, Michael R. Zito, 20, of Carmel Valley, was not injured.

According to the California Highway Patrol, Miss Salabarry was driving south on Highway 1 one mile south of the Pfeiffer Canyon Bridge when she entered a curve, hit a slick spot in the road and skidded across the highway into an embankment. The car overturned, the CHP said.

Damage to the vehicle was total, according to the CHP.

Swim club try-outs scheduled

Youngsters aged 8 to 16 who pass a basic swimming test are eligible for a free month of instruction. There is a monthly fee for swim club members. The team competes in AAU-sanctioned synchronized swimming.

Try-outs in Carmel are scheduled on consecutive Tuesdays at the Carmel High School pool. They start at 5:30 p.m. Other try-outs will be conducted at the Pacific Grove High School pool on Fridays at 5:30 p.m. and Sundays at 10 a.m.
